ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

For converting color data to be processed by a first device into color data to be processed by a second device, using a color conversion table, a constraint condition is set between the color data, and a color conversion table between at least portions of the color data is generated according to the constraint conditions, whereas a color conversion table between remainders of the color data is generated in colorimetric association therewith.